Summary of reasons for decision:

The publication is a low-budget horror film from Australia about a demented serial killer who chooses a rape victim as his next target. Two excisions were required to remove part of a scene (and related content in a behind-the-scenes component) that causes the DVD to tend to promote and support the use of violence to compel a person to submit to sexual conduct, and the infliction of extreme violence and extreme cruelty under s3(2)(b) and s3(2)(f) of the Films, Videos, and Publications Classification Act 1993. If the excisions had been made, the DVD would have been classified R18 due to the high extent and degree of gruesome horror, the infliction of serious physical harm and cruelty, and sexual violence. The distributor declined to make the excisions, so the DVD is classified as objectionable. This classification imposes a limitation on the right to freedom of expression as affirmed by the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990, but it is a demonstrably justifiable limitation; it is consistent with Parliament's intention that publications falling under s3(2) be deemed to be objectionable, and with preventing injury to the public good.
